

Nursing Community Coalition Commits to Working with Biden-Harris Administration

Friday, January 22, 2021—The Nursing Community Coalition (NCC), which includes 63 national nursing organizations, congratulates Joe Biden on being sworn in as the 46th President and Kamala Harris as the 49th Vice President of the United States. The NCC is committed to working with this Administration as we continue to combat COVID-19 and advance sound health care policy grounded in science.

During the ongoing pandemic, as with every public health crisis this country has faced, nurses are the experts leading at the frontlines of response efforts. We know nurses have, and will continue, to play a significant and vital role in all health care conversations. Successfully bridging those conversations and innovations with impactful implementation is essential to ensuring an equitable and efficient health delivery system. As our nation continues to grapple with COVID-19, and as we prepare for the next public health challenge, the contribution of nursing education and the nursing workforce remains critical; especially as we work to increase access to high-quality health care and promote wellness of the patient and provider.

We look forward to working with the Biden Administration as we combat this public health emergency and as we make progress on the most vital issue of our time – building a healthier nation.

The Nursing Community Coalition includes 63 national nursing organizations that are the cross section of education, practice, research, and regulation within the profession.
